Jamorama Guitar Learning Suite Discussion

There are a lot of books about guitar, as well as videos about playing guitar, but neither of those really get the job done. They can't compare to having a teacher there, and they really only teach you one side of the problem, so you're still not going to have all the info. But something called Jamorama can really help.

This is a learning program that's more ideal for beginners, because it approaches the problem of learning from multiple angles. You get the videos so that you can actually see what you need to do on the fret board.

Through video learning you can actually see how you should be playing guitar, that way you can master your fingering and finger placement. You also get text based lessons to help you out as well.

Of course, a big part of the problem when you're learning to play guitar, is that you've got to also be able to listen and just hear that you're getting the sounds right. Which you can do if you have the audio lessons that Jamorama provides.

One of the inherent problems with getting a teacher to help you learn guitar, is just how expensive it's going to be. That's going to cost you a fortune, and not everybody has that type of money.

What you're also going to find is that Jamorama provides you with lessons that you can learn on your own time, and in the comfort of your own home. So when you're feeling your most motivated, this is when you can go learn.

Of course, some people do find that guitar is not for them, and while you can't get your money back from an instructor, you can get your cash back from Jamorama if it just doesn't work out.

You've got to take what you learn with this software, and apply it to practicing regularly. Once you can do that, then you definitely are going to be able to master the guitar and be the player you want to be.
